From Eco to Eco+:

Inspiration from the development of Shanghai Chongming eco-island

China Planning Research Group Event

Speaker: Ms. Juan Sun

Senior Urban Planner,

Vice President of China Academy of Urban Planning and Design, Shanghai E

Secretary of General of National Youth Working Committee, UPSC

Abstract:

Ecological conservation and development have received great attention from cities in China. As one of the economic centers in China, the municipal government of Shanghai actively supports ecological development projects. Chongming is an important ecological strategic project in Shanghai. With the new version of Chongming Island Master Plan, our research team conducted an in-depth investigation to understand inhabitant's daily life, and analyzed the development course. The presentation talks about the achievement, contradiction and confusion of the development process. This presentation also proposes the concept of 'from eco to the eco+' for further discussion.

Sandwiches and drinks are provided afterwards.

Staff and students (BSc, MSc, and PhD students) are all welcomed.
